

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE

This specialist fund offers real estate focus, with global diversification. The real estate focus is through real estate securities with a specific bias towards stocks classified as investors, as opposed to developers. The investor classification is defined as those stocks that have 70% or more of their income derived from rent. The guiding principle is the ownership of real estate assets, primarily to earn rental related income streams which provide a stable underpin to long term returns. Global diversification is across geographic regions, currencies, countries and real estate types. The intention is to provide an attractive risk-adjusted return to form part of a multi asset class portfolio. The fund benchmark is the FTSE EPRA/NAREIT Developed Rental Index, which comprises of stocks in the following regions: United States, Canada, UK, Europe, Japan, Hong Kong, Singapore, Australia and New Zealand.

MONTHLY COMMENTARY AS AT 30 JUNE 2018

The FTSE EPRA/NAREIT Developed Rental Index, recorded a net total USD return of 2.18% in June. The best performing listed real estate market was the United States, which recorded a total USD return of 4.15%. Singapore recorded the lowest total USD return for the month of -3.78%.

The Catalyst Team recently returned from abroad having attended the NAREIT Conference in New York City. The conference is the industry's leading real estate conference, providing the largest gathering of REIT management teams and investors. The tone was noticeably more optimistic than in recent years. Supply remains a common discussion point across most real estate sectors. Broadly speaking, management teams have navigated supply pressures well, and construction cost inflation as well as a tighter financing environment, are serving as governors of new construction. The benefits of tax reform have begun to filter into stronger business investment and personal consumption, and with the US economy at full employment and experiencing growth, conditions are supportive of real estate demand. Overall, the consensus view from the conference was that fundamentals remain intact and that companies are reasonably well positioned for the long-term.

One of the key takeaways from the trip was further confirmation of the strong demand for industrial logistics properties. Given the exceptional performance of the logistics sector over recent years, there are reservations as to how much longer this strong performance can continue. Investors should question the possibility of buying into 'too much of a good thing,' but likewise should avoid future expectations being anchored by the past. Please refer to this month's global report for further insight into the evolution of the logistics real estate sector and a highlight of key present-day considerations.

Real estate fundamentals overall remain healthy, largely due to manageable supply levels relative to demand, with an improved economic growth outlook. Taking the estimated forward FAD (Funds Available for Distribution) yield of 4.73%, and medium-term growth prospects into account, listed real estate currently looks fairly valued on a risk-adjusted basis.
